

Abby Paulson

1st Quarter Goals Reflection (50/50)

My grade currently an A. Well an A+ if you count extra credit.

I feel this grade reflects accurately on my work. I think that maybe I got a little more extra credit than I should have. But it doesn't really matter because I had 171% and an A which is 100% is so much less than 171% that it brings my grade down. I am now at a 146.5% and all that has been entered is two 100% grades.

I love my Language Arts reading this year. I mean I read a lot in all my other L.A. classes but not nearly as much as I do in your class. I am so happy we get to read at our own paces and the books we want to read. I have gotten so much more read and a much better L.A. experience(s).

For the daily reading logs I kind of enjoy it/ them but they can really get hard and over bearing when you don't do them in class.

Goals I thought was creative and pushed people to read more. They also had to think about there book and its meaning. Also it seemed to help a lot of people with their fluency and vocabulary.

Reading is fun but we never got the data. The one piece of data I love the most was how your map scores compared to the schools and wisconsin. I also like figuring out our fluency. This is how my experience with this year's Language arts.